Voices of the Earth: The Future of Our Planet

"We all have different ways of communicating. Essayists describe what they see in prose, poets in poetry, and activists in testimony. Notable Works has collected Rhode Island poetry of the world around us, the emotions, the sensuality of the living world, they write of warm sunny days, winter nights, and the struggle to maintain a livable planet. The pairing with a listing of environmental activist groups gives those inspired by the poetry a place to take action, and those engaged in the struggle a place to catch their breath and remember why we do this work."

Greg Gerritt: NWF Representative of the Environmental Council of RI.

Summer Concert and Poetry Reading

Please join Notable Works to help kick off the "Music For The Soul" Summer Concert Series at the First Baptist Church of Cross Mills in Charlestown, Rhode Island on June 30, 2019 at 3 PM. This event, which will feature the Notable Works' Ensemble, will also celebrate the release of Notable Works' new publication Voices of the Earth: The Future of Our Planet. This compilation of original poetry by local poets, addresses the issue of climate change and includes a list of some of Rhode Island's environmental agencies, which are doing such a great job of dealing with this crisis. Mary Ann Rossoni of Second Story Graphics beautifully designed this book. Her cover art and illustrations truly capture the poetic message and idea behind the entire project. We hope you might consider purchasing a copy at the concert or you may order this book today by visiting notableworks.org and then clicking on the link to Lulu.com.
